WEINGAND,

The Quality Place.

The prairie chicken season opened Sunday and a big bunch of fellows sneaked away from church and went out on the fields of slaughter. The day was a hot one and the dogs did not work extra well, yet the results in most cases were satisfactory. George Schatz and a party of four brought in forty-two, which was the heaviest kill reported to this office. Other parties got from ten to twenty-five. All told there were probably 400 chickens brought in by the various hunting parties.

Thumb Sliced With Saw.

There is a old saying "never monkey with a circular saw." Dad Jaques, who has worked with J. A. McMichael for several years, was not "monkeying" with such a saw Saturday, but he was working with one, and in an unguarded moment shoved his right thumb into the saw with the result that it was cut in twain almost the entire length. Dad is therefore nursing a painful wound and it will be several weeks before he will be able to have use of the hand.

Electric Current Burns Boy's Hands.

Gordon Rebhausen, the thirteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Rebhausen, had his hands badly burned Saturday by an electric current. "Red" Morrill, who conducts a vulcanizing shop on Fourth street, conceived the idea of having some fun with the boys who were in the habit of congregating at his shop. He nailed a piece of tin over a rafter of the shop and attached thereto an electric light wire. Boys were then bantered as to whether they could jump high enough to catch the tin-clad rafter with the intention that as they hung by their hands, the current would be turned on. Young Rebhausen was the first to make a successful attempt, and as he hung with his hands, the switch was turned. The current proved stronger than anticipated and Rebhausen hands were "froze" to the tin—he couldn't let go. Luckily the switch was turned off in a moment or two, but not until the inside of both hands had been pretty well cooked, necessitating taking the youngster to a physician. It may be possible that two or three fingers will remain stiff.

George Wright Dies From Fall.

Geo. Wright, a man of fifty-five or sixty, who made his home in this city for thirty or more years, died Saturday as a result of falling down the stairway leading to the second floor of the Bratt building on Front street the evening before.

Wright who, with his family, occupied rooms in the building, was ascending the stairway and had nearly reached the top, when he lost his balance and fell backward, the body bounding several times and landing on the sidewalk in front of the entrance. He was noticed by E. T. Tramp and son Arthur who went to his assistance, and assisted him upstairs. At that time Wright said he was "all right," but later when his wife put him to bed he complained of a severe pain in his head, and later he became unconscious. A physician was summoned who rendered such aid as he could, but in the morning the injured man had a series of convulsions and death followed. Wright leaves a wife and one daughter about eleven years old.

The funeral was held from the Howe & Maloney parlors yesterday afternoon.

Studebaker

The name alone stands out in radiant splendor as a beacon light in the manufacturing world.

The name alone is a symbol of Honesty, Integrity and Quality.

The name alone when once realized among ranchmen and farmers to be the same Studebaker whose product for the past sixty years have been best known as the Studebaker Wagon and Carriage needs no introduction, no smooth guy agents, no coaxing, no treating over the bar or any old way to lead them to become the owner of an automobile.

No car is more despised, more hated, more misrepresented than the Studebaker and "There is a Reason." It is taking the lead everywhere it gets established and soon to take the lead here.
